emilyblincoe We are up in the tip top of Maine- driving down all the prettiest roads, stopping for picnics, and to smell every single flower. I'm working with @VisitMaine this week to shoot images for their quarterly mag. They have us set up on the neatest adventures. I have never been this far north. I can see Canada across the river. 🇨🇦 (Hi Canada!) The weather is perfect and the people are SO nice. I have actually never met nicer people. It's hard to stay on any kind of schedule because you'll be talking to someone and all the sudden, an hour is gone. I feel really grateful to be here. It feels like Maine was just what I emilyblincoe We woke up at dawn, canoed all day with our guides Matt and Taylor from @neocmaine. A moose swam right past our boots and I almost did a cry. I've never seen a moose before and that was my "Maine" goal for this trip (do you get it?). It was the most magical scenario. We picnicked next to some rapids, hiked to ice caves and came back to the lodge to canoe some more for sunset. It was the best day ever. Happy to be working with @VisitMaine this week, going on adventures I won't ever forget. @MaineHighlands #MaineThing benschuyler Finally heading home after a brilliant time working with @visitmaine, @mainesmidcoast, @visitportland, and @downeastacadia. Few places strike my heart the way that coastal Maine does. The constantly changing weather, the historic old fishing towns, and the rich green pines bring me to a place of serenity and simplicity. With all that, the #MaineThing I've taken away from this trip is that there are few people like Mainers. They're loyal, kind, and just salty enough. Very much looking to coming out to this area of the country again. #spon visitmaine Gorgeous photo. @benschuyler! We were thrilled to have you here in Maine and we look forward to having you here again. 🍷🍷 thehappywaitress @benschuyler heard u had a wicked bad oysta - hope you ~~eat another butter~~
